it must be shown that the use of the mains themselves is an absolutely essential part of a scheme to defraud, and this, I am con-fident, he cannot do. If Mrs. Hamilton had any object other than that made plain in her letters to the Scotchman she could have defrauded him in other ways than by writ-ne had never met any other men in the

No. 364 Broadway, which was the address to which MacClellan wrote when he began to which MacClellan wrote when he began corresponding with the young widow want-ing the companionship of a man of busi-ness, position and honor, was dark and deserted last night. There is no advertise-ment office there.

No. 1384 Broadway is the uptown office on Thursday night last.

Besides the man who called on Mr. Car wrst reday morning and promised to call at the Post Office building on Monday or Tuesday to tell Mr. Carmody what he knew about a woman of that name, with whom he had had some correspondence.

L. W. HARBURGER UNDER BONDS

Accused With a Client of Pummelling Lawyer Radin Out of Court,

Attorney Leopold W. Harburger, formerly

Alderman from the Eighth district, and

Attorney Matthias Radin of 35 Nassau street quarrelled on Thursday over the civil suit of Ruff vs. Minsky, which they were arguing before Justice Roesch in the Fourth district court. The argument resulted in blows outside the court room. John C. Ruff, 80 St. Mark's place, a former products for the Assembly on the Tam-candidate for the Assembly on the Tam-many ticket, joined his attorney and friend Harburger, it is alleged, in pummelling Radin.

Radin had Harburger in the Jefferson
Radin had Harburger in the Jefferson

Market police court yesterday and told Magistrate Finelite that his life was in danger from counsel and client. Ruff and Harburger were put under oath to keep the peace.

DIES FROM PITCHED BALL BLOW.

Thomas F. Burke of Lynn, Mass., Team Found to Have Suffered Broken Skull.

Boston, Aug. 11.-Thomas F. Burke of his city, who was hit by a pitched ball on Burke was 26 years old, son of ex-Super-intendent of Ferries William J. Burke, and lived in East Boston. He was a lawyer as trol of the popular movement has indeed passed into the hands of men of the revolutionary terror. A time of internal ferment, compared with which all the disorder pillaging and assassination of the past months will have the appearance of public order, lies before this unhappy country During that period the liberal sentiment of patriotic Russians will be put to a still severer test, but those who now waver will rally again and, recognizing that a return to the old régime is impossible, and that the liberty, restricted yet real, which was conceded in the institution of the Duma and can never be permanently lost, gives them the opportunities to show themselves statesmen who know the seasons when to take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider. Yet they will unite against the wantonly destructive terrorism to which Russia is meantime doomed, and; putting far from them henceforth fantastic notions, chimerical schemes and unnatural alliances, will address themselves to the solution of the complex problem which now confronts this State namely, the struggle between democratic and monarchical ideas in Government, the role of the sovereign in a parliamentary regime, and the relation of ministeria responsibility to the parliamentary system."

When a careful and competent publicist like Mr. Wallace prophesies a reign of terror for Russia it augurs ill indeed, and it offers a striking contrast to the easy optimism of the governing class described in the opening lines of this despatch.

CLASH MAY COME AT ELECTIONS. Russian Premier Said to Be Preparing to Control Them by Force.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. ST. PETERSBURG, Aug.11.-Prime Minister Stolypin is developing a scheme of making sure of satisfactory elections with considerable confidence. The Russians have short memories. Those police forces which a month ago feared indictment for inciting massacres are now preparing to destroy their erstwhile parliamentary tormentors, let it cost what it may.

The gross ignorance of the conditions in Russia displayed by messages from abroad helps to harden the bureaucracy and its Black Hundred mercenaries. Such egregious nonsense this week as the assertion that the Czar intended to abdicate, that a military dictatorship would be established, and that a proclamation declaring universal martial law at the very time when the Government remains master of the situation helped to convince the bureaucracy that they were wrong in paying much attention to the counsels of the Western world during the existence of the Duma.

The armed forces of the Government are now ordered by Premier Stolypin to dominate the election. This will mean unquestionably a wholesale jacquerie. No Russian will believe that anybody speaks or works for a Government candidate unless he is well paid, and the knowledge that public money is being poured out in the employment of patriots constitutes the necessary match to set the peasantry and tariat all aflame. The bourgeois and the moderates are combining in face of this spectre. The bulk of the Constitutional Democrats are now negotiating with the Octobrists with the view to organizing under one banner all the progressive

For the first time since the war the Emperor has ordered a great military review to be held at Krasnoe-Selo during the coming week, in which over 50,000 men will participate. It is expected that the Emperor will occupy for a few days the residence at Krasnoe-Selo of Commander in Chief Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch. The appeal to the military spirit coincides with the Government's definite repudiation of all parliamentary parties and its reliance on physical force.

MM. Shipoff and Heyden, the Conservative leaders, published letters to-day denying the veracity of Premier Stolypin's communique, which said they did not enter the Ministry because they were unable to agree among themselves. M. Shipoff de-clares that the negotiations failed because public men unanimously insisted upon the arliest possible convocation of a new Duma as the only means of repairing the radical error of dissolving the old body M. Heyden adds that public men insisted before proceeding with the negotiations that they must contribute five leading Ministers, especially the Minister of the Interior, and that these should form the leus of the national administration. M. Stolypin refused this and M. Heyden says: "If we failed in anything it was in failing to convince the Government that there was no sense in trying to convert us into bureaucratic Ministers, seeing that the whole purpose of our action was to form a public administration of public men with a public programme. It is stated that Capt. Kock of the Red

Guard has been arrested. The professors of St. Petersburg Univercity and the other higher educational estabments have passed resolutions favoring the unrestricted admission of Jews.

SENT- HER TO KILL KAULBARS.

Terrorists Controlled Gen. Printz's Daugh ter, Who Carried Bomb to Odessa. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

ODESSA, Aug. 1f .- The young girl who made an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to assassinate Governor-General Kaulbars with a bomb and afterward committed suicide was a daughter of Gen Printz, commander of the Warsaw Division. She was educated with Gen. Kaulbart's daugh-

She arrived here from Warsaw a week ago and frequently visited the General's house, where she watched his movements closely in preparation for her attempt. The authorities found a letter in her room stating that she belonged to the Terrorist section of the Social-Revelutionaly party. She came to Odessa under special order to kill Gop. Kaulbars .- . va bas arch a

GRAND DUKE FIRED ON.

Troops Out for Blank Firing Practice Use Ball Cartridges.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, Aug. 11 .- A report has reached ere of the narrow escape of Grand Duke Micholas Nicholaievitch, president of the Council of National Defence.

The report says that the Grand Duke was reviewing the Imperial Guards and putting the troops through blank firing predice when some of the soldiers fired located cartridges.

When the Grand Duke heard the hiss of the bullets he ordered the troops to cease firing and they were marched back to their quarters and an investigation was started. The Grand Duke was uninjured.

will over Thirty Years Old Just Flied. The will of Owen Duffy, who died over thirty years ago, has just been filed in the Sarrogate's office in Brooklyn. All the property was left to the four children of the testator, and there has been no controverse between them over its management. The delay in filing the will is attributed simply to carelessness.

Seeing

New York Yacht ENCIRCLES the ISLAND of MANHATTAN showing the Statue of Liberty, Battery, Castle Garden, Hudson, North, East and Harlem Rivers, Spuyten Duyvil, Hell Gate, Blackwell's Island, Palisades of the Hudson River, Jersey City, Brooklyn, Harlem, Bronz, High Bridge, Jumel Mansion, the Commerceand-Greatshipping Interesta, Ocean Liners, the Navy Yard and thousands of other objects of interest, HUNDREDS OF POINTS OF INTEREST EXPLAINED EN ROUTE

EXPLAINED EN ROUTE

by LECTURERS, who give a brilliantly told story, the history, romance, tragedy and associations connected with the founding and progress of this great Metropolis.

EXCURSION TICKETS, $1.00.

Leave foot of 22d st., N.R., 10 A.M., 220 P.M.

Leave foot of 22d st., N.R., 10 A.M., 2:20 P.M., Daily and Sunday. 'Phone 4844 Grameroy. Tickets on Yacht or office in Flatiron Building. Seeing New York Automobiles leave the Flattron Building, 5th Avenue side, at 10:00 A. M., 2:00 and 4:00 P. M. Fare $1.00.

DEMANDS DETECTIVE'S ARREST

COUNSEL FOR RAIDED BROKERS CHANGES HIS MIND.

Magistrate Tells Sleuth McConville That Seizure of Boardman & Co. Branch Books Was Not Warranted by Charge Before the Court-Garvan to Explain.

Franklin Bjen, counsel for the four men arrested on Friday in the raid on the several brokerage shops of John A. Boardman, & Co., stirred up the Tombs police court yesterday morning. Detective Sergeant Barney McConville and Assistant District Attorney Marshall were in court on a summons issued after the raid by Magistrate Breen at the request of Mr. Bien, who wanted to try and get possession of the books and papers they seized.

Mr. Bien declared that the books and papers had been taken illegally and without warrant and that the only charge specified in the affidavit upon which the arrest of his clients and seizure of their papers was made was that they had conducted a mercentile business without having filed the proper certificate with the County Clerk. He said the police could have easily proved this charge by consulting the records of the County Clerk's office and they were absolutely unjustified in taking the books and papers which had no bearing on the charge. "I know that the police of this city do about as they please, but they can't make the law for me," he said. "We ask your Honor to issue an order giving us back our books." "Everything we have taken, your Honor, said Mr. Marshall, "is held as evidence that this business was being carried on illegally." "We admit doing business," said Mr

"Yes, but what kind of a business?" asked Mr. Marshall sarcastically.

"A good legitimate business, just as legitimate as you'll find in Wall Street," said Mr. Bien with a show of anger. "Why, your Honor, if the police may make a seizure n this high handed way, no business house in New York is safe. We've opened up again this morning and will stay open and want to know what the police propose to lo about it. I'll say now that if they go down there again as they did yesterday without warrant of law, somebody will "Can't even get up a shiver on that, laughed Mr. Marshall. "How can I make anybody give up these books? I have no such power, said Magis-

"I have asked your Honor for a warrant for the arrest of this man McConville, and you refused me. I now repeat that request.' "Very well, go and make your complaint and affidavit and I'll give my decision."

Mr. Bien got the necessary blank from the clerk and busied himself for ten minutes drawing up the complaint against McCon-Marshall got tired and went back to his office. Then Mr. Bien changed his mind. Appearing again before the istrate, he said that while he still wanted McConville arrested "neither member of the firm" had arrived in court to swear to the complaint and he wanted the case put over until Monday at 2 P. M.

Magistrate Breen said that would suit him. McConville then spoke up and wanted to know how about him. He was there on a summons, might he go now? Magistrate Breen said, yes, as far as he was concerned; the summons had been torn up.

"Then I want a new one!" shouted Mr. Bien. "I want this man here on Monday in court."

court."

A new blank was given to him and he filled it out and handed it to McConville.

The lawyer then asked Magistrate Breen to issue an order giving him and his client permission to look at the seized books, so they could carry on their business. Magistrate Breen declined, saying he had no right to do so, and Mr. Bien ought to know it.

Detective-Sergeant McConville said that he thought the District Attorney would let Mr. Bien have the privilege without any order, and this proved to be true, for later Mr. Bien was told he might inspect the books at any time.

at any time.

Magistrate Breen told McConville that as the only charge before the court was failure to file a certificate, the police had no right to seize papers which were not needed to prove that charge. He did not know what other charges were to be made, but so far the seizure was unwarranted.

McConville said that Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who has charge of the case and is out of town, had ample reason for seizing the documents and would be able to convince the Magistrate that he had.

COP SHOT WITH HIS OWN GUN. McMullen Was Chasing Pickpockets He

Spotted on a Car. Sergt. McMullen of the Central Office while trying to catch some street car pickpockets yesterday morning, was shot by the accidental discharge of his own revolver About 9 o'clock in the morning McMullen was cruising on the Thirty-fourth street crosstown cars in search of a gang of pick pockets that have been operating on that line. He spotted his men—there were two of them—but they at the same time recognized them—but they at the same time recognized him from previous acquaintance. They reached the step first and had a good start by the time the detective could unwedge himself from the crowd on the platform.

The two men started up Madison avenue from Thirty-fourth street. At Thirty-fifth street they turned west, but McMullen was gaining on them. He was followed by a shouting crowd that grew at every doorway. Just when the detective seemed sure to have the men caught in a few more strides his gun fell from his hip pocket to the sidewalk. The iar set off a cartridge and the bullet struck his right knee. McMullen went down in a heap and the chase was over. He was taken to the New York Hospital.

OTHER MEN SEEK THE WIDOW

AN ANXIOUS PERSON KEEPING TABS ON S2D STREET HOUSE.

He's Engaged to Some One There, but She Doesn't Answer Mrs. Helen Hamilton's Description - A Horsewhipping Which May Figure in the Complicated Tale.

Mrs. Helen Hamilton, who was before United States Commissioner Shields on Friday on charges of having extracted $2,800 from James V. McClellan of Philadelphia, through her warm love letters. sent out a hurry call for reporters last night to make a statement of her side of the case and also to give samples of McClellan's love letters. The reporters went to her nome, at 323 West Eighty-second street. Mrs. Hamilton, after a lengthy pause, in which she was presumably sorting out letters upstairs, came down with a sheaf in the world than Mrs. Hamilton, sale weat on. "What troubles her most is that a man in whom she placed so much trust and confidence should have deceived her so. I cannot convince her, however, that she is well rid of him; she still loves him very dearly and is willing to marry him, despite all that has happened."

This statement was corroborated by Hugh Gordon Miller and Joel E. Marks, who are counsel for the accused woman. Mr. Miller denied last night that his client had any intention of leaving town, and Mr. Marks said that Mrs. Hamilton was a woman of the highest respectability. She had been, he added, a client of his firm for some time and in all their business relations he had never had suspicions aroused that she was any other than Mrs. Hamilton. "MacClellan, besides being no gentleman, said Mr. Marx, "as my colleague, Mr. Miller, has very properly remarked, has really no case. The Supreme Court has decided that it must be shown that the use of the mails themselves is an absolutely essential part of a scheme to defraud, and this, I am con-"He is nothing but a fortune hunter, said Mrs. Hamilton by way of introduction. "He couldn't get as much as he wanted, so he backed out. I think it's only fair to show what kind of letters he wrote." Thereupon she read the following, which was dated June 1, she said, and which she declared came from McClellan MY LITTLE SWEETHEART: Yesterday I could not go into details in answering your dear sweet letter. I love you more than I can tell. I never dreamed life could hold out so much to me. It will be so much better now that I am to have a rich wife. To be absen from you, dear sweet one, is like imprison-ment. I love you with all my being. I will be pleased to be with you on your birthday and hear your dear sweet voice say, "James,

The rest of the letters that Mrs. Hamilton had she was just going to read when the door bell rang and she was squired upstairs by her butler, Robert. When she came down she said:

"Well, I guess that one will have to do That is a fair sample. You can judge what the others are like from this."

Outside in the street the reporter was stopped by a small, dark, anxious looking man, who seemed very eager to know just what business he had in the house. He wanted to know what Mrs. Hamilton looked like and was much relieved to find out that she was dark and not too plump. He confided that he had been going with a woman who advertised from 323 West Eighty-second street six weeks ago and that she had got a ring worth $150 from

"I'm engaged to her," he said, "and ! wanted to know if it were the same woman all the time. I thought maybe we were all going up against the same proposition and that she was collecting rings from all of us But the one I know isn't dark at all. She's got auburn hair. I got suspicious of her a while ago when she told me that she, with another woman was going up to Saratoga. I wired up and found that she wasn't there at all. Just to think of it, I've lived in New York all me life and then to fall for this game like this.

"Anyhow, it's something to know that she isn't the one that got this Philadelphia guy. That would make it something

Mrs. Hamilton is, in the opinion of Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Car mody, Mrs. Bina F. Verrault, who got her name in the newspapers last January as the result of a little horsewhipping episode. Mrs. Verrault, the newspaper files have it, with a friend, who afterward gave her name as Mrs. Azalia Browne, lay in wait for a man said to be the husband of Mrs. Verrault at the corner of Columbia avenue and Eighty-third street. Whoever the man was, he came sauntering along as the two women had expected he would, and he did not catch sight of them until a rain of stinging blows fell upon his head and body from horsewhips in the hands of the two women. The man tried to get away, but the crowd which had gathered blocked his progress The women still pursued him. At last, how ever, he got away. Mrs. Verrault, as she called herself, said that the man whom she had horsewhipped had been circulating slanderous stories about her and she had resolved to put a stop to it.

The next day a man who said he was George T Verrault got a warrant for the arrest of the two women on the charge of assault. He also had summoned to the West Side police court at the same time two young men who gave their names as Gregory Allen and James Mason. Allen said he was a sculptor. Allen and Mason were accused by Verrault of luring him to the corner of Columbus avenue and Eighty-third street so that the women might accomplish their purpose.

When the case came up for trial the stories told by the defendants differed so markedly from those related by Verrault that the matter was dismissed.

that the matter was dismissed.

Mr. Carmody's announcement that the name of MacCiellan's correspondent was not Helen Hamilton but Mrs. Verrault came after a long secret conference with a man who came into the United States District Attorney's office accompanied by one of the Poet Office inspectors. This man was tall and looked like a prosperous business man.

was tall and the stranger left Mr. Carmody said to him:

"This address is in New York city, I suppose?"

Yes, but if you put on Bronx borough it will reach me more quickly," was the they left Commissioner Shields's n, Mr. Carmody's caller was heard to "No, I put in the ad, and she answered

After the stranger had gone Mr. Carmody declined to say whether he had heard from any other man who had been in correspondence with Mrs. Helen Hamilton. He admitted, however, that he did not think that that was the woman's right name and seemed to be confident that the Federal authorities would have sufficient evidence to make a strong case against the woman. authorities would have sumcient evidence to make a strong case against the woman when the hearing before Commissioner Shields is held, on September 26.

It is understood that the Post Office in-

It is understood that the Post Office inspectors and the District Attorney's office are working to unearth more correspondents of the woman who liked white diamonds and blue Oriental turquoises because they represented true love. Now that MacCiellan has come forward and made a complaint they think that others will follow his lead.

MacCielian left for his home, at 2349 Oxford street, Philadelphia, on Friday night, after he had the satisfaction of seeing his "fiancée" brought before Commissioner Shields. He is a saving body, thrifty as they make them in Sootland, and it wasn't

Correct Arres for Min

The maximum of style—prices as low as consistent

George G. Pernjamin Broadway, Cor. 36 257 with thorough workmanship and quality.

CASHIER HELD IN $68,000 BAIL

CHICAGO BANKER FACES EIGHT CRIMINAL CHARGES.

Henry W. Hering in Jall, Unable to Find a isman-Stensland Scared Into Flight by Demand for Clearing House Inquiry-Police Guard Dead Teller.

oy chance that he savet all the letters and telegrams that he received from his "ever devoted Helen." These letters and telegrams, with the stube from his check book showing the amounts he had given to Mrs. Hamilton on the strength of her love letters, he turned over, before he went back to Philadelphia, to Assistant United States District Attorney Carmody.

MacClellan, it was learned yesterday, is out only two of his grocery stores; the third he handed over to his brother for a consideration—when he yielded to the urgent appeals of Mrs. Hamilton that she had money enough for both of them. When his brother found out that MacClellan had decided to break off his engagement to the wealthy New York woman, to visit whom he was making frequent trips to this city, he agreed to hand back the store.

A woman answering the description of the friend who was in court with MacClellan's "flaucée" yesterday—who is said to be a Mrs. Browne—said yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Hamilton was all wrought up over the publication of her love affair with MacClellan.

"He was a brute to do such a thing, and there isn't a sweet r or more honest woman in the world than Mrs. Hamilton, "she went CHICAGO, Aug. 11.-Henry W. Hering, cashier of the looted Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, was taken into court this afternoon and held to the Grand Jury under eight charges. In spite of the pleas of his counsel for low bail, Judge Smith fixed the total bonds at $68,000. The complainant in each case was C. C. Jones, State Bank Examiner. 'In fixing the bond the Court took into consideration the amount of money involved as well as the gravity of there isn't a sweet or more honest woman in the world than Mrs. Hamilton," she went on. "What troubles her most is that a the charges. Hering was held on two charges of forgery, bail in each case being fixed at $10,000; two charges of perjury, bail in each case being $10,000; two charges of conspiracy, with a similar bond; one charge of larceny bail $5,000, and one charge of embezzle ment as a banker; bail $3,000.

The amount seemed to stagger Hering. Up to late to-night he had been unable to find sureties.

To-day additional light was thrown on the early flight of Paul O. Stensland, when it became known that a request had been made by one of the banks to the Clearing House Association for an examination of the books of the wrecked bank. James McDougal, examiner of the Clearing House Association, had announced that he would be ready to make the examination in a few days. On hearing this Stensland made his escape, leaving the bank with a little cur-

Members of the Clearing House Association are discussing the advisability of making examination by their own examiner compulsory upon all members. At present the banks have to submit to examination by the State officials, but the fact that such an examination brought no terrors t Stensland and others of his class has shown that a more searching method of procedure

Banks in affiliation with the Clearing House Association may be examined on the request of any other member of the association, but there is no compulsion to stand examination at regular stated intervals.

State's Attorney Healy and his assistant, Harry Olson, spent nearly the whole day on the case. It is known that a number of bench warrants have been prepared and returned to Judge Smith. Mr. Olson admitted this, but refused to say for whom the warrants were issued.

her letters to the Sootchman she could have defrauded him in other ways than by writing him love letters."

Although the young man who answered the door all day yesterday and consented to say that he was not the butler, denied that Mrs. Hamilton alone occupied the house, it was said in the neighborhood that at least three other women had lived there since a woman of distinguished appearance took possession of the house about four months ago. This woman, it is said, is known to the tradesmen in the vicinity as Mrs. Hennessey. This coincides with the statement made by MacClellan and Deputy Marshal Reed, who said that while they were waiting for the exit of the Scotchman's correspondent last Friday morning, bundles of laundry marked "Hennessey" and "Keene" were delivered at the basement door.

Mr. Miller said yesterday that he believed that Mrs. Hamilton was the sole occupant of the house. He did not know the friend who accompanied his client to court on Friday, but thought her name was Mrs. Hennessey. The description of the woman, said by people in the neighborhood to be Mrs. Browne, fits the stoutish woman with hair of the golden shade commonly seen in the middle reaches of Broadway who accompanied Mrs. Henniton on Friday. The other member of the trio, the young man, MacClellan said, was the man whom he knew as the butler of the West Eighty second street house. This young man bears a striking resemblance to the young man Jacob J. Kern, an attorney whose mortgage and note transactions with the wrecked bank have been the subject of investigation by Receiver John C. Fetzer, was called into the State's Attorney's office early in the afternoon and closely questioned by Mr. Olson. Kern's business with the he knew as the butler of the West Eightysecond street house. This young man bears a striking resemblance to the young man who answered the door yesterday, also to a young man who for some time was in the employ of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor.
Mr. Borglum's assistant, whose name was Gregory Allen, helped the sculptor when he was modelling the female angels for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, which were ruthlessly destroyed by Mr. Borglum because he was annoyed at the queetion of their sex raised by certain Episcopal clergymen. Mr. Allen, it was learned last night, left the employ of Mr. Borglum several months ago Letters addressed bank aggregated more than $1,000,000, and the fact that he negotiated all his business with Stensland personally has caused the investigators to go closely into the matter. The line of examination pursued by Mr. Olson was not made public, but it is known that Kern is being called upon to show the reason for all his borrowing from the bank.

The police were summoned to keep order at the inquest into the death of Frank Kowstski, teller of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, who shot himself last night. The anger of some of the Polish depositors was so great that the body of the dead teller was cursed as it lay in the parlor. Loud words of denunciation disturbed the deputy coroner and the wreath on the door of the house was torn down and the flowers scattered. cattered.

last night, left the employ of Mr. Horgium several months ago Letters addressed to a man of that name have been: coived at 223 West Eighty-second street.

Gregory Allen was one of the two young men whom Verrault had in court last January on the charge of luring him to a horse-whipping at the hands of Mrs. Verrault and Mrs. Browne. At that time Mrs. Verrault gave her address as 114 West Seventy-third street. When she gave up that house last April she gave tradesmen in the vicinity Inspector Shippy declared this evening that he had no definite information of the whereabouts of Paul O. Stensland and had no knowledge that he had been arrested. april she gave tradesmen in the vicinity the impression that she was about to leave the city.

MacClellan told Mr. Carmody that in the dining room of the house, which is on the second floor and at the front, Mrs. Hamilton had a series of mirrors arranged, by ton had a series of mirrors arranged, by means of which she could see any one in the street approaching the house. If a woman happened to come along and ring issued no warrants and nave no present intention of issuing any, but if the directors do not appear they will be persuaded to go to the bank."

It is declared by those who have followed the developments of the case that there are just two men who know where the fugitive president now is, one being the attorney for Theodore Stensland—Jacob J. Kern—and the other the son himself. Mr. woman happened to come along and ring the bell Mrs. Hamilton would press a little button in the beautiful oak dining table and presently the caller would join the pair of happy lovers. He always noticed, though, that if a man rang the bell Mrs. Hamilton left the button severely alone. MacClellan said that outside of the butter than the control of the control of the severely alone. hern—and the other the son himself. Mr. Kern is already on Theodore's bonds and his long friendship for the principals in the case is well known. Through him, eventually, it is believed, communication will be established with the elder Stensland. Upon the decision of the father to return will depend in a large measure the punish-ment that will be meted out to the younger ment that will be meted out to the younger Stensland.

En. Paso, Tex., Aug. 11.—Paul Stensland, the Chiergo embezzler, has been lost sight of. In Fort Worth yesterday, he was expected here to-day, but he was not aboard the train when the police met it several miles east and searched for him. Freight trains are being watched, as he is said to be headed this way for Mexico.

TOOK A SCALDING BATH.

Little Children Locked Up for Safety En gage in a Fatal Prank.

No. 1364 Broadway is the uptown office of a morning newspaper. There it was said last night by the manager that on Thursday night last a young woman had paid for an advertisement to be inserted in to-day's issue of the Philadelphia Inquirer In the advertisement, the writer, who sign. herself "Active," says that she wants as partner who has $3,000 to invest.

The manager said that the young woman came to the office some time ago and paid for an advertisement, signed "Sincerity," which she desired inserted in a Sunday issue of one of the Philadelphia papers. He could not recall the name of the newspaper or the contents of the advertisement, but he is certain that the young woman who called with it is the same who appeared on Thursday night last. When Mrs. Orlinsky of 246 East Fourth street went out yesterday afternoon to do a little shopping she carried Ida, the youngest baby, in her arms and put Lena, and Benny, 2 years old, in the bathroom. She feared to leave them in the other rooms as they had a habit of going on the fire mody yesterday, t was learned that a communication was received by the Assistant United States District Attorney from still another man. This man said he had seen Mrs. Hamilton's name in the newspapers

The little children left alone decided that they would take a bath. Undressing, they clim bed into the tub and Lena turned the faucet. A high pressure stream of scalding water spurted out, the little one having opened the wrong valve. She having opened the wrong valve. She managed to get out of the tub, but not before being terribly scalded. She screamed for help, forgetting in her panic all about her little brother, who had fallen unconscious in the fast rising water.

Mrs. Klein, a neighbor, heard the children crying and ran in. She broke in the door and grabbed the boy out of the tub and he was hurried to Bellevue, but he died in a short time. Lena also may die. When the mother heard of what had happened in her absence she tried to hurl herpened in her absence she tried to hurl her-self from the window into the street. The father was almost as bad when he got home. ors had to keep a constant watch

Thursday in the Lynn-Fall River game in Lynn, cied in the Lynn Hospital to-day without having Fregained consciousness. His skull had been fractured by the blow and a clot of blood had formed on the brain.

Burke was 25 years old son of av Sinne. the favorite dentifrice. Perfectly delicious and fragrant. Positively benefiwell as a ball player.

He was so fond of the game that he usually spent his summers on the diamond. He signed as left fielder with the Lynn team at the beginning of the season. cial. Ask your deatist.

ANY children have a musical education forced upon them by parents who expect to enjoy their playing later on.

But the child may never develop any real talent and never get to the point of playing the kind of music that it is a pleasure to listen to. Or, having reached that point, may marry and leave home, so that the parents are again left without any musical resources.

The Pianola Piano does not interfere in the slightest degree with a child learning to play by hand, but it does give the parents the satisfaction of hearing the best music well played without waiting for years.

Regarded solely from a narrow point of view, it might be supposed that the Pianola and the Pianola Piano would interfere with the study of piano-playing. But the facts do not bear out any such theory. Statistics show that there are to-day more conservatories of music, more teachers of the piano and more musical students than at any time in the past. And yet there are more Pianolas and Pianola Pianos in daily use than ever before.

The explanation lies in the fact that these instruments awaken a keener interest in all things musical. They stimulate the child by placing before it a concrete example of good playing, and if the spark of talent actually exists, the child will be the more eager to master the difficulties of technique.

The process of developing the child's musical talent is slow.

But the musical returns from the Pianola and Pianola Piano are instantaneous. Parents can be enjoying the masterpieces of piano-forte literature at the same time and from the same instrument on which their children are practicing scales and exercises. The Pianola Piano creates a musical atmosphere of its own in every home in which it is

Prices $550 to $1,000, purchasable on moderate monthly payments.

The Aeolian Company Acolian Hall, 362 5th Av., new York

THE-

การับได้ บุงงานแบบเล่าในแบบแบบเกษาการแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบในการแบบแบบ บาลแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบแบบ

Grand Rapids Furniture Company (INCORPORATED)

In their new

STUDIO BUILDING 34 & 36 West 32d Street

Between Broadway and 5th Avenue

Announces a transition from crowded quarters to an exposition that admits of comfort to the seeker after "FURNITURE WITH A MEANING"

0- W-V 30-

Sheraton Side Table.

Two generations of New Yorkers know that our name stands for only that which is permanently good in Furniture. To pay our prices and get our goods is the wisest kind of economy.

Schmitt Brothers, Furniture Makers 40 East 23d.

THREE HURT ON COAL BARGE. Gas From the Hold Blew Up the Deck When

a Match Was Struck. The tug Termenter, Capt McLoud, came in here yesterday with two men and a woman who were burned by an explosion on the barge Cassie, off Atlantic City, at 9:30 yesterday morning. The Cassie, a coal aden barge, was in tow of the Tormenter, bound from Norfolk to New Bedford. The two men, Andrew Detreic of 149 Saratoga avenue, East Boston; Niels Olsen and Miss Davis, the stewardess of the Cassie, are the injured persons. The men were at work in the hold when the light in their lantern went out. One of them struck a match to light it and the gas in the hold exploded, blowing out the deck overhead. Miss Davis was in the cabin right over where the men were working. The men were badly burned about Se face, arms and body. They were taken to the S. R. Smith Infirmary. The captain of the Termenter complained that the steamer Arapahoe, which spoke them after the accident, treated them with indifference when asked for assistance, and in fact all but refused to take the men on beard.

board.
Capt. Kemble of the Arapahoe, on the other hand, reports that he agreed to bring the men to New York, but advised landing the mat Atlantic City as the quickest thing

MONON FAST MAIL WRECKED.

Train Ditched While Going Sixty Miles an

RENSSELAER, Ind., Aug. 41.—The Monon fast mail train, northbound, while running sixty miles an hour, was wrecked at a curve

DIED.

AUDEMARS .- On Thursday, Aug. 9, 1906, Hortense widow of Frank L. Audemars. Funeral services at her late residence, 40 Morn-ingside Avenue East. Borough of Manhattan on Sunday, Aug. 12, at 11 A. M.

Jeannette Bly, dearly beloved and only child of Edward Brunsen and Julie Farley Camp, in her eighth year. Notice of funeral hereafter.

CLARK.—Saturday morning, Clara L., widow of Alexander Clark, at her late residence, 232

CAMP .- At Milburn, N. J., on Saturday, Aug. 11,

DRUMM.-Oh Aug. 10, Charles A. Drumm, aged 41 years. Services at funeral chapel, 241 West 23d st. (Camp-

HARLOW.—On Aug. 11, Major Frank S. Harlow,
U. S. A., aged 63 years,
Funeral services from the chapel of the Stephen Merritt Burlal Company, 8th av. and 19th st., on Tuesday, at 2:30 P. M.

MadMaRTIN.—Died, at New City, N. Y., Aug 10, 1908, Mary Bigelow, wife of the late David MacMartin, aged 75 years.
Funeral services Monday, Aug. 13, at 11 o'clock from St. Matthew's Church, 84th st. and Central Park West. Interment private. MOOCK.—Passed away, in Mamaroneck, N. Y.-Anna, widow of Peter Moock, aged 74 years

PRAEGER.—On Saturday morning, August 11.
Frances Adele, beloved wife of John F. Pr. eggs.
The funeral will take place from her late resistance.

Funeral from residence of her son-in-law, O F. Smith, Orienta Point, Sunday, Aug. 12, 51 dence, 124 Willow st., Brooklyn Heigh's, on Tuesday, August 14, at 3 o'clock. QUIN.—On Thursday evening, Aug. & James Francis Quin, after a short illness. Funeral on Sunday afternoon from the residence of his sister, Margaret A. Quin, 104 Oak RUAX.-Suddenly, at his summer home in his 52d year. Funeral services at Clinton, N. Y., on Monday August 13, at 3 P. M. Take "Empire State Express train to Utica.

UNDERTAKERS

Be not deceived. We are the only STEPHEN MERRITT BURIAL CO... 8th Av. and 19th St. Tel. 124 Cheisea. Rev. Stephen Merritt, Pres. P. W. Radellife, May tion was necessary, while many others were bruised.

The train consisted of two mail cars. a combination baggage and coach, one day oach and three sleepers. The engine at 1 all the cars except the rear sleeper are in the ditch.

Nearly one hundred passengers were the train and how they escaped death is marvel. Benny Yanger, the prizefighter, w was defeated by Kid Herman last night here to-day.

No one was killed, but ten persons were so scriously injured that medical attent.

Was detected by kild Herman has linguisted a stateroom on the rear sleeper. He escaped injury.

This is the second expensive wreck on the Monon railroad at this point in a few weeks.